make a difference. Envitote is fast becoming the reusable bag of choice in Hollywood and America. The affordable, collapsible tote is getting rave reviews for its unique design which sets it apart from the typical reusable bag. Unlike the cheap, unsanitary polypropolene bags so popular today, Envitote is washable. It is also biogradable making it more eco-friendly. Although Envitote was released mid-September, its popularity is evidenced by the celebrity enthusiasm for the product.

HUNT'S

Envitote was recently chosen by Hunt's for their upcoming commercial with Chef George Duran. Envitote was picked by Hunt's in a move to be more eco-friendly after releasing their first national commercial segment for the Crash Kitchen Tour featuring Duran. Duran is best known for being the chef of the younger generation on the Food Network. Director Morgan Spurlock, best known for his documentary "Super Size Me," had final pick of the reusable bag for the upcoming commercial.

TAMAR GELLER

Envitote was also noticed by Tamar Geller for its outstanding design. Geller is the dog trainer of many celebrities, including Oprah Winfrey. She recently selected Envitote as the donor gift baskets for an Operation Heroes and Hounds fundraising event. The organization pairs homeless animals with war veterans.

Envitote's superior design is a stylish alternative to your typical reusable bag. It is eco-friendly and made of lightweight canvas. Envitote is sturdy with lots of room - 14" x 9" x 9". The adjustable strap and side handles allow for easy loading and unloading. It is collapsible for easy storage. The removable cardstock stiffeners add support, preventing items from being crushed. Envitote is washable, sanitary and durable enough for multiple purposes.
